

PROVIDENCE FOUNDATION of North Dakota

Providence Foundation of North Dakota has partnered with Providence House Minot to directly support women with children and pregnant women seeking treatment for substance use disorders. As the only center in North Dakota specifically designed for this population, they address the challenges faced by women seeking treatment, such as childcare responsibilities and family obligations. Currently, North Dakota lacks sufficient treatment options tailored to women's unique needs, resulting in significant barriers to recovery. Providence House Minot aims to bridge this gap by providing specialized services.

The treatment center is currently open to women and pregnant women, but to accommodate women with children, an administration building is needed. This building will allow for onsite daycare and counseling services for children and their mothers. The project requires $1,500,000.00 in funding, and the Providence Foundation of North Dakota is committed to developing financial partnerships over the next 18 months to complete it.
